Since the publication of the committee report two additional objections have been received from local residents. Both express their frustration that the application is being considered favourably, believing the Inspectors decision to be final, binding on the Authority and one that could not be overridden. The Council have also failed, in the residents' view to manage both sites following the appeal decisions and have let the occupants do whatever they please, not following the enforcement action placed on them showing total disregard for this supposed restriction. Residents have lost faith in the planning process.

The concerns are noted but the Council has a duty to determine the submitted application. The Inspector's previous decision is highly relevant and has informed the recommendation to committee along with all other relevant Policies and guidelines. The dismissal of the appeal was not the end of the planning process as regard this land and any application submitted must be determined.
